

Relation between direct methods and iterative methods with some applications

Yuan Jinyun

In this talk we review the relation between the direct methods (matrix decompositions) and iterative methods, specially, the Gaussian elimination methods and CG/SCD methods for solving linear systems. Some special matrix decompositions are discussed. Some applications to real problems at data science are given.